Totally Out of Control': Anti-Trump Ruling Sparks Fury

Trump added, "They are totally OUT OF CONTROL. They seem to hate 'TRUMP' so much, that anything goes! We are trying to bring our Country back from the destruction caused by the Democrats and Crooked Joe Biden."

Trump bluntly wrote, "What is going on with our Courts?"

If the judge's order stands, it could seriously slow the Trump administration's efforts to deport migrants admitted under the CHNV program. Talwani has a history of ruling in favor of immigrant protections and has barred ICE from making arrests near Massachusetts courthouses.

The CHNV parole program has been a key subject in the Trump administration's ongoing legal battles over immigration enforcement. Talwani's decisions are expected to impact immigration enforcement policies beyond this case.

Trump said, "I won on a Policy of Common Sense, and what Common Sense do we have when we have to have 530,000 trials?"

Pam Bondi Drops the Hammer, Begins Bringing RICO Charges

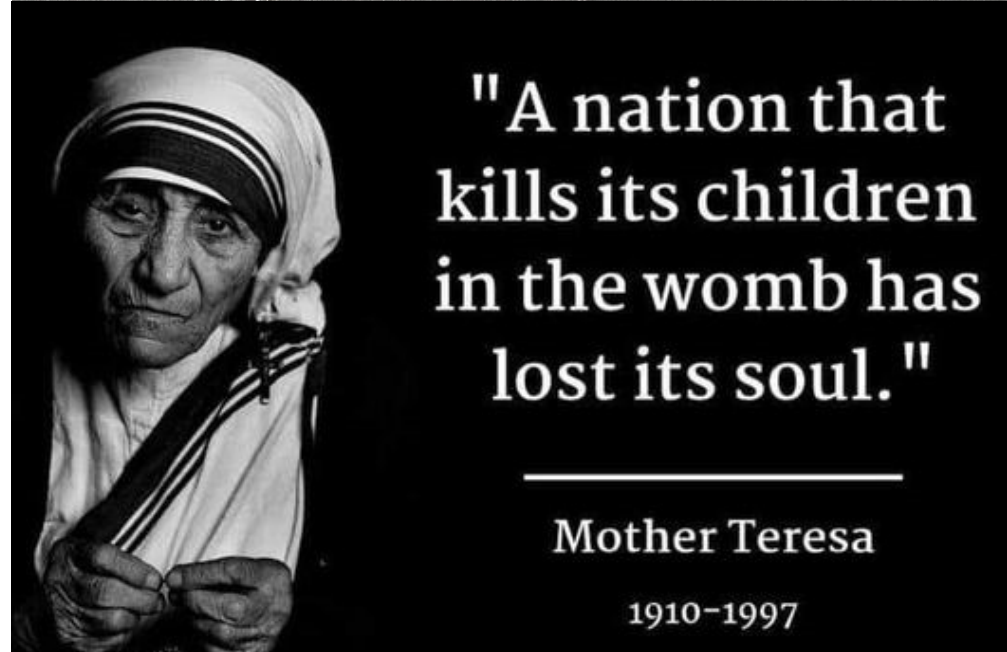

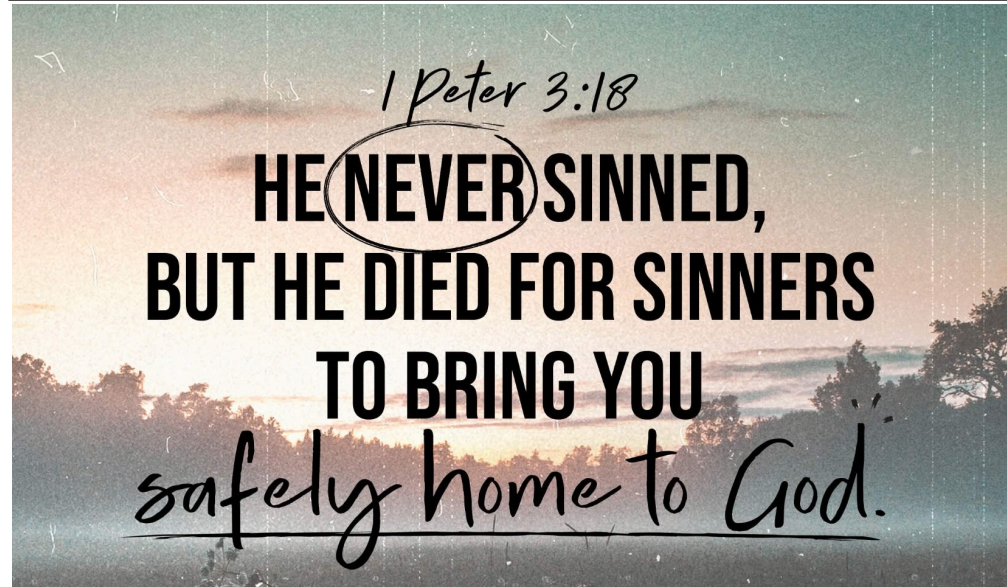

It feels like just yesterday that the left was braying about alleged members of the Venezuelan transnational gang Tren de Aragua being sent to El Salvador's CECOT megaprisons as part of their deportation. That's because, more or less, it was yesterday.

In the media release, U.S. Attorney General Pam Bondi made it clear that the Department of Justice planned to treat Tren de Aragua as a serious terror threat.

"As alleged, Tren de Aragua is not just a street gang – it is a highly structured terrorist organization that has destroyed American families with brutal violence, engaged in human trafficking, and spread deadly drugs through our communities," Bondi said.

FBI Director Kash Patel touted the arrest on social media, saying that the "charges are a major step in breaking the operations of violent terrorist gangs and rooting them out of American communities."

Lib prosecutor says charging Tim Walz official for Tesla vandalism would risk ‘public safety’

A Minnesota prosecutor said she declined to bring felony charges against a state official whom police said vandalized six Tesla vehicles due to “public safety” and “recidivism rates.” Hennepin County Attorney Mary Moriarty explained Wednesday (April 23, 2025) why a fiscal policy analyst under Democratic Minnesota Gov.

Tim Walz’s administration qualified for pre-charge diversion for causing more than $21,000 in damages to Teslas. The left-leaning prosecutor dismissed mounting accusations that she is soft on crime, and asked why the community wasn’t talking about gun control instead.

By 7-2 Vote Supreme Court blocks new deportations of Venezuelans in Texas under 18th century Alien Enemies Act

The U.S. Supreme Court issued a ruling early Saturday (April 19, 2025) morning blocking, at least for now, the deportations of any Venezuelans held in northern Texas under an 18th century wartime law.

The justices instructed the Trump administration not to remove Venezuelans held in Texas’ Bluebonnet Detention Center “until further order of this court.”

Justices Clarence Thomas and Samuel Alito dissented from the majority opinion.

SCOTUS has previously said that the Trump administration could conduct deportations under the Alien Enemies Act, as long as the suspected illegal immigrants are given due process to challenge their removal from the U.S.

The Trump administration claims the act gave them the authority to swiftly remove immigrants they accuse of being members of the Tren de Aragua gang, regardless of their immigration status.

In Wyoming, the Eastern Shoshone tribe decided to classify buffalo as wildlife. Here is why

Read More @ AP

The Eastern Shoshone this month voted to classify buffalo as wildlife instead of livestock as a way to treat them more like elk or deer rather than like cattle. Because the two tribes share the same land base, the Northern Arapaho are expected to vote on the distinction as well. The vote indicates a growing interest to both restore buffalo on the landscape and challenge the relationship between animal and product. Tribes and locals tend to say buffalo while scientists use bison to describe the animal.

The Hill Opinion: All the Justice Department needed was a new attorney general

Opinion by Sen. Eric Schmitt (R-Mo.), opinion contributor

For four years, Democrats and the mainstream media insisted there was only one way to prevent the horrific murders of American citizens like Laken Riley and Jocelyn Nungaray at the hands of illegal immigrants: Pass new legislation.

Not only was this astoundingly tone-deaf, it was also verifiably false.

The laws we need to stem the tide of dangerous cartels and gang members like Tren De Aragua and MS-13 from entering our country have been on the books for decades. The truth is that Joe Biden and Merrick Garland always had the executive tools at their disposal to enforce our borders but shamefully refused to use them.

As President Trump said in his joint address to Congress: "It turned out that all we really needed was a new president" to enforce the laws as written. His first two and a half months as president have made this abundantly clear.

It also turns out that all the Department of Justice needed was a new attorney general, at the president's side, fully committed to pursuing justice and prosecuting criminals over vindictive lawfare and villainizing law enforcement. All the department needed was someone committed to hunting down violent criminals, arresting them and putting them behind bars with punishments appropriately severe for their crimes. That new attorney general is my friend Pam Bondi, and she is rising to the occasion.

It is a breath of fresh air for the public to have an attorney general committed to eradicating terrorism on our soil. The contrast between her goals and achievements and Garland's could not be more stark.

For the past four years, under the failed leadership of Garland, the Biden Justice Department has been unjustly weaponized against its political opponents. A once respected agency, the Justice Department went after parents who exercised their First Amendment rights at school board meetings under the auspices of the Patriot Act. Not to mention, the agency has also intimidated and levied charges against Catholics for simply practicing their faith.

United States Attorney General Pamala Bondi

Ramos comments on state auditor’s 3rd damning report of UC’s noncompliance with decades-old laws to return Native American human remains and objects to rightful tribes

SAN BERNARDINO—Assemblymember James C. Ramos (D-San Bernardino), chairperson of the California Native American Legislative Caucus, today issued the following statement upon the release of a third state auditor’s report dealing with return of Native American human remains and objects to tribes. The audit review once again damns the University of California (UC) for its lack of accountability and urgency in returning Native American remains and cultural items required by the 1990 Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) and its state counterpart, CalNAGPRA.

NAGRPR became law 35 years ago. This latest audit sampled four campuses—Berkeley, Riverside, San Diego and Santa Barbara – along with the Office of the President. Campuses throughout the UC system are continuing to find collections, demonstrating an obvious haphazard negligence in its inventory process. Failure to return those inventoried remains and cultural resources is woefully incomplete at most campuses. UC has demonstrated a disrespectful, scornful, and cavalier attitude in its disregard for federal and state law. UC issued apologies after each previous audit, but little has changed, reflecting the insincerity and seeming unwillingness to follow these more than 30-year old laws. Besides, continuing to hold vast collections, the state auditor also found instances when the remains were treated carelessly. Improper care of cultural items and remains exposes the collections to being stolen as some items were in 2022 from UC, Davis.

UC’s Office of the President and too many of its campus chancellors, almost as a constant practice, failed to provide the leadership, oversight, resource allocation and accountability to comply with the law.

It is very disturbing to me as a Serrano/Cahuilla person who still conducts reburials of our people that a law implemented 35 years ago is still being discussed today, and furthermore the audit says it could take another decade to repatriate the collections in the UC system. As chair of the Native American Caucus and a sitting member in the state legislature, I will be insisting on a hearing to address the auditor’s findings.

More grievously and even more pernicious is the UC system’s apparent failure to comprehend that the collections it possesses and treats shamelessly are the human remains of Native Americans, ancestors of tribal Californians who deserve to be interred respectfully and in the traditions of their people. Why should these human remains be treated as less than those of the fathers, mothers, children, men and women of our own families? After all, the remains are not rocks or trophies, they are the human remains of California’s First People.

As we approach the 40th year of NAGPRA’s passage, we should assess or create penalties for this outrageous noncompliance with NAGPRA and CalNAGPRA.

The Daily Caller News Foundation

“Gangsta Woman”

Does Tish James Live In Her Two Houses 500 Miles From Albany? We Knocked On Doors To Find Out.

NORFOLK, Virginia — The Daily Caller News Foundation visited two southern Virginia properties at the center of fraud and misconduct claims made against Democratic New York Attorney General Letitia James and found that James does not appear to be a resident of either home.

The Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) referred James to the Department of Justice (DOJ) for potential investigation of alleged mortgage fraud on Monday, referring to a White Collar Fraud report presenting evidence that James may have committed mortgage fraud with one property while filing inconsistent disclosure reports about loans on the other. The DCNF visited both homes in question on Wednesday, discovering that both residences are apparently inhabited by multiple people, but apparently not James.

One of the properties is a modest two-story home located in a quiet residential Norfolk neighborhood. James is alleged to have characterized the home as her “principal residence” in paperwork filed August 2023 — possibly to secure more favorable loan terms — despite serving at the time as New York’s attorney general, a position that requires primary residence in New York state while it is held.

Beyond the two Norfolk properties, James is also alleged to have consistently misclassified a multi-family property she owns in Brooklyn, New York, as a four-family unit instead of a five-family unit, according to White Collar Fraud. The outlet suggested that the repeated misidentification could have enabled James to secure more favorable loan terms because relevant law defines any property that holds five or more families as a commercial property, a classification that is typically subject to more stringent loan terms.

California’s best run city does not have one Democrat leading it

Huntington Beach, Southern California

The name of the best-run city in California has been revealed, and the results probably won’t shock many Republicans.

While it’s easy to rag on California for being a Democrat-run dumpster fire with too many regulations, sky-high taxes and absurd social policies, the truth is that not every city is like that. Huntington Beach, California is a perfect example of that.

According to a new poll by WalletHub, Huntington Beach is the best-run city in the state due to its local leadership, which does not consist of one Democrat.

“But how do we measure the effectiveness of local leadership?” WalletHub questioned. “One way is by determining a city’s operating efficiency. In other words, we can learn how well city officials manage and spend public funds by comparing the quality of the services residents receive against the city’s total budget.”

The six categories used to measure quality of life in a city are education, health, safety, financial stability, pollution and infrastructure.
