AMERICAN INDIAN TRIBAL NEWS * ERNIE C. SALGADO JR., CEO, PUBLISHER/EDITOR

My View By Ernie C. Salgado, Jr.

American Indian, Deb Haaland U.S. Rep. of New Mexico, Nominated Secretary of Interior

FOR THE RECORD: The main stream and the Big Tech social media are incorrect in reporting that Rep. (D-NM) Deb Haaland, Pueblos of Laguna and Jemez, who Biden has announced he would nominate for the position of Secretary of Interior, and if confirmed by the U.S. Senate would be historical as she would be the first American Indian to become a member of a Presidential Cabinet.

FACT: Charles Curtis (January 25, 1860 - February 8, 1936) was an American Indian attorney and a Republican politician from Kansas who served as the 31st vice president of the United States from 1929 to 1933, becoming the first Native American and the first person of color to hold the office of vice president. He also previously served as the Senate Majority Leader from 1924 to 1929.

A member of the Kaw Nation born in the Kansas Territory, Curtis was the first person of American Indian ancestry and a tribal member of a recognized American Indian Tribe to reach either of the highest offices in the federal executive branch.

He is the highest ranking American Indian ever to serve in the federal government. He is the most recent Executive Branch officer to have been born in a territory rather than a state.

It should also be noted that Curtis was the first person of "Color" to serve as vice-president, not senator (D-CA) Kamala Harris as has also been misreported.

However, the news of the proposed nomination of Rep. (D-NM) Haaland has many in Indian Country in a state of euphoria and understandably so.

If confirmed by the Senate she would be the first American Indian woman and second American Indian to serve on a presidential cabinet.

Although the majority of Indian Country support her nomination not all tribal leaders see her as a friendly advocate of tribal economic development, specifically those tribes that are oil, gas and coal producers.

The importance and significance of her nomination cannot be overstated in Indian Country. However, Rep., Rep. (D-NM) Deb Haaland must first go through what is expected to be a bruising and hostile U.S. Senate conformation hearing process, which is not always very congenial.

And given her far leftist radical ideology, "The Green New Deal" her close association with Rep (NY) Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, senator (D-VA) Bernie Sanders and other left-wing extremist that will certainly be highlighted by the GOP senate majority as well as many left-centered Democrats who have been distancing themselves from their Marxist agenda since the November 3, 2020 election.

It appears that the liberal Democrats are blaming the far-left Socialist Democrats for the lost of so many House seats.

So, given the current hostile political atmosphere in the Nations Capital it is therefore in my humble opinion that Rep. Rep. (D-NM) Deb Haaland will not be confirmed by the U.S. Senate as the Secretary of the Interior.

Then again, with the possibility of members of the House and Senate challenging the November 3, 2020 election results based on the growing evidence of voter fraud, during the joint congressional conformation session on January 6, 2021 raises the possibility of overturn the fraudulent election.

Although the odds of congress overturning the November 3, 2020 election is slim, the fact that it is even considered is historical.

However, as senator Rand Paul (R-KY) pointed out during the senate hearing on the elector fraud, that none of the state of federal courts, including the Supreme Court of the USA have ruled on the evidence of a voter fraud, they have all ruled on procedures and other legal speak to avoid having to review to evidence. He went on to say that the congress must address the issue to prevent it from happening in the future.

Could be much more history in the making! Biden may very well not be assuming the office of the presidency. Happy New Year!

Southern California:

San Manuel Band of Mission Indians Gives $14M to Launch Health Research Center at Claremont Graduate University

"The donation to Claremont Graduate University in California will help start a facility focused on researching chronic disease"

Natasha Brennan * Special to Indian Country Today

Claremont Graduate University has announced a landmark $14 million gift from the San Manuel Band of Mission Indians to establish a health research center.

The center aims to support the Southern California Inland Empire region's underserved and Native American populations.

"In our role as stewards of our ancestral lands, we support our neighboring communities, in addition to our tribe," San Manuel Tribal Chairman Ken Ramirez said. "For generations, low-income communities and underserved populations have needed quality healthcare. Our gift is an investment in future healthier communities and one we are happy to make."

Claremont Graduate University in Claremont, California, announced earlier this month that the Huntley Bookstore building will become the home of the Yuhaaviatam Center for Health Studies.

The innovative, multidisciplinary health research center was launched more than a year ago and will now have a home in the building.

The center's mission is to respond to the chronic illness crisis plaguing the marginalized and vulnerable populations of the Inland Empire and Indian Country by using an integrated health approach and working with the university's researchers, scientists and more than 300 partnering health organizations.

The creation of the Yuhaaviatam Center for Health Studies has been in the works since 2019 but was delayed due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

A date for its opening has not been finalized; however Claremont Graduate University President Len Jessup is hopeful the renovations will be complete in the upcoming year. The building is still used as a bookstore.

Jessup said the partnership between the school and the tribe will stimulate future research into many of the underlying conditions the world has focused on during the pandemic.

"It's our hope to eventually produce the kinds of research at this center that will prepare everyone, especially our most vulnerable populations, for the challenges of another global crisis," Jessup said. "In terms of areas of study we are looking forward to bringing together our faculty and students with other researchers, health care providers, and health policy makers to improve the health and well-being of vulnerable populations throughout the Inland Empire and beyond."

The center is in a region where many residents with chronic illness lack sufficient health coverage or awareness of the benefits of preventative care and wellness practices. The university's students, researchers and divisions are already conducting studies on proactive and behavioral approaches to disease prevention.

The creation of the center will also allow for the center's focus to extend to the Los Angeles area - home to the country's largest population of urban Native Americans.

"The types of health and well-being research that will be tackled by the center are relevant to the needs and situations of so many today. Its benefits will ripple out," said Deron Marquez, former San Manuel chair, Claremont Graduate University alumnus and a university Board of Trustees member.

The tribe, which also sponsors the Las Vegas Golden Knights hockey team and other Las Vegas venues, is a top-10 private employer in San Bernardino County, with more than 4,500 team members.

The tribe recently announced it is constructing a resort expansion, which will include adding 429 guest rooms, expanded high-limit gaming, new dining amenities and a special events space. It will add more than 2,000 new jobs by the end of 2021.

The San Manuel Indian Reservation is located in San Bernardino County near the City of Highland.

IS JOE BIDEN FIT FOR THE PRESIDENCY?

Tucker Carlson: Biden's silence on his son, Hunter's foreign dealings tells us everything about where America is heading!

BPR BUSINESS & POLITICS

December 15, 2020 By Frieda Powers * Contributed by Amanda Marquez, Soboba Indian Reservation CA

Tucker Carlson warned of the long-term effects on the country if the mainstream media continues to give Joe Biden a pass on answering questions about his son.

The Fox News host called out the Democrat for avoiding discussions about Hunter Biden and his questionable foreign business dealings, warning about Biden's "new kind of democracy" on Monday's "Tucker Carlson Tonight" program.

"So if you've been watching the news, you've got to give some credit to whichever MSNBC contributor who wrote the words of that Joe Biden's speech earlier. If you didn't know better, if you had no context, you might think everything is better now. The great orange emergency is finally over," Carlson said.

"Joe Biden wants you to know he didn't run for President three times because he craves power, or because he seeks to enrich his ne'er-do-well relatives, or because he has a vast empty space inside that only the adulation of strangers can fill," the Fox News host added with sarcasm. "No, not at all. He ran for President because he deeply cares about you."

"What matters, Joe Biden wants you to know is that this is a democracy, always has been, always will be and by electing Biden and the small secretive group of billionaires who choreograph his every move, this country has become even more democratic," Carlson continued, noting that it's the "kind of democracy in which 11 left-wing billionaires who fund his campaigns run everything."

"That's the Chinese model of democracy that Joe Biden and his friends so admire. So get used to it, America. It's a new kind of democracy," he said. "In China, people in power don't have to answer questions, so neither does Joe Biden."

Carlson went on to explain how Biden has refused to answer questions about his son despite an ongoing "federal criminal investigation relating to tax fraud stemming from his business deals in China."

"So why isn't Joe Biden willing to answer even basic questions about his son's foreign business dealings? The ones where he had lucrative arrangements, very lucrative arrangements with companies directly tied to the Communist Party of China?" Carlson questioned.

"Well, possibly it's because Joe Biden himself was directly involved in those deals and has been lying about them. We've been telling you that for more than a month, and now, it is obvious," he added.

"One of Hunter Biden's former business partners, Tony Bobulinski already presented contemporaneous documentation proving that. The reason the Press Corps and their allies in Silicon Valley did everything they could to bury that story is that they knew perfectly well that more evidence was coming, and it's arrived. That's evidence that they can't suppress," Carlson explained to viewers, noting new emails evidence obtained from the younger Biden's emails.

"If all this seems a little dodgy to you, not quite as straightforward business deal, you should know that back in 2019, Joe Biden wasn't repeating the same line about being proud of his son," Carlson noted. "No, he went on the record and denied he knew anything about his son's business relationships abroad, including with Chinese communists, the very same relationships that were slated to make him rich."

The Fox News host speculated that Biden "must think people are as slow as he has become."

"This isn't even a solid cover. The point of the Biden political operation, one of them anyway, from the very beginning has been to make as much money influence-peddling as possible," he said, calling out the former vice president's ability to live in sprawling homes on a government salary and how his son was able to "go from unemployable to rich virtually overnight."

"If you're going to restore democracy, the rest of us have a right to know exactly where the money came from. What did they do for it? And what effect is it going to have on the country going forward?" Carlson questioned.

"In a democracy, that's a very basic request, and there's nothing democratic about ignoring the question," he concluded. "In fact, it just confirms what's obvious, which is they don't plan to govern us as a democracy, but instead as an oligarchy."

EDITORS NOTE:
SEE THE DEDINITION OF AN OLIGARCHY BELOW.

THE DEDINITION OF AN OLIGARCHY

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Oligarchy (from Greek few, and to rule or to command) is a form of power structure in which power rests with a small number of people.

These people may be distinguished by nobility, wealth, education, corporate, religious, political, or military control.

Such states are often controlled by families who pass their influence from one generation to the next, but inheritance is not a necessary condition of oligarchy.

Throughout history, oligarchies have often been tyrannical, relying on public obedience or oppression to exist.

Aristotle pioneered the use of the term as meaning "Rule by the rich," for which another term commonly used today is plutocracy.

In the early 20th century Robert Michels developed the theory that democracies, as all large organizations, have a tendency to turn into oligarchies.

In his "Iron law of oligarchy" he suggests that the necessary division of labor in large organizations leads to the establishment of a ruling class mostly concerned with protecting their own power.

The modern United States has also been described as an oligarchy because economic elites and organized groups representing special interests have substantial independent impacts on U.S. government policy, while average citizens and mass-based interest groups have little or no independent influence.

Colorado River Indian Tribes Assumes Major Role In Drought Relief Efforts In Arizona & Western U.S.

Source: Shayne’s Journal #4838 * December 24, 2020

PARKER — On the Arizona-California border, where the Colorado River pushes against Headgate Rock Dam, churning water pours into a wide canal and runs across the desert, flowing toward the farmlands of the Colorado River Indian Tribes.

This tribal nation is the largest single user of Colorado River water in Arizona, with rights to divert about 662,000 acre-feet per year, more than double the amount of water diverted for the state of Nevada.

But unlike other tribes elsewhere in Arizona, the Colorado River Indian Tribes, or CRIT, are legally barred from leasing water to growing cities and suburbs.

The reasons go back to a 1964 decree by the U.S. Supreme Court that established the tribal water rights, and to a law enacted in the 1790s that limits tribes’ authority to make such deals without congressional approval.

Now tribal leaders plan to ask Congress to pass legislation that would allow them to put some of their water on the market by leasing it out. They say their water can help Arizona endure shortages as drought and climate change reduce the river’s flow.

They’re already leaving some farmlands dry in exchange for payments, helping Arizona deal with cut-backs under an agreement aimed at boosting the water level in Lake Mead. The reservoir has declined to 39% of full capacity and is approaching the threshold of officially entering a shortage.

Chairman Dennis Patch said the tribe can do more to help as the Southwest grapples with declining water supplies, and in turn would benefit by leasing some of its water. He said it’s also time the Colorado River Indian Tribes gain the ability to use their water as they choose.

“We did this as a tribe because we wanted to claim our own destiny with our land and our water,” Patch said during a virtual meeting on the proposal earlier this month. “Our water is critical to the state’s water security as the drought continues and possibly worsens.”

And because CRIT holds the most senior first-priority rights, its water likely won’t be at risk of cuts during shortages. “It can be used by others in Arizona to lessen the impact of shortages if Lake Mead continues to drop,” Patch said. Leasing some water would also generate funds to repair and upgrade the aging irrigation system on the reservation, helping its farms use water more efficiently, Patch said. He called the plan “a win for Arizona water users, for the river and for our people and the reservation economy.”

CRIT has about 4,500 tribal members. In January 2019, members voted in a referendum to endorse the approach of seeking federal legislation to lease a portion of the water for use off the reservation.

If Congress agrees and passes a law, the legislation would be the first of its kind in Arizona and could clear a path for other tribal governments along the river to seek authorization for similar water deals.

The tribal community’s pursuit of water-leasing is occurring alongside an upswing of discussions in the Colorado River Basin about ways the established rules of the system could be made more flexible to allow for a variety of deals, including leaving some farmland dry and fallow, to send water to cities as scarcity worsens.

The Colorado River and its tributaries provide water for about 40 million people and farmlands from Wyoming to the U.S.-Mexico border. The river has long been chronically overused and its reservoirs have declined dramatically over the past two decades during a stretch of mostly dry years, which research shows are being worsened by rising temperatures.

Patch and other tribal leaders agreed to a request by state officials to present their proposal this month at two online hearings.

Amelia Flores, who on Dec. 5 was elected to take over as CRIT’s chairwoman, said during one meeting that she plans to work with members of Arizona’s congressional delegation to introduce the bill.

The Mohave people are known as the Water People, the Aha Makhav in our language,” Flores said. “We have always lived on the Colorado River and the river has always supported us. It has religious, cultural, as well as life-sustaining and economic importance.”

The Colorado River Indian Tribes’ reservation was established by the federal government in 1865. Its members come from four tribal affiliations. The Mohave have lived along the river for thousands of years. They were joined by Chemehuevi people, some of whom were displaced by flooding on their lands when dams were built. Later, in the 1940s and 50s, the U.S. government encouraged Navajo and Hopi families to move to the reservation to farm.

The reservation includes nearly 300,000 acres in Arizona and California, with the river running through it. On the Arizona side, the federal government owns the system of irrigation canals, which is operated by the Bureau of Indian Affairs and carries water to about 79,000 acres of farmland.

The water serves as an economic engine for the tribes, supplying large farming operations that produce hay, cotton and wheat, as well as smaller amounts of crops such as potatoes and carrots. The market value of the crops grown in 2020 was estimated at $95-$100 million.

The crescent-shaped expanse of farms along the river covers an area about one-fourth the size of Phoenix. But each acre of fields planted with alfalfa or cotton, when compared with the water needs of suburban homes, consumes significantly more water. The farms are flood-irrigated. Water flows with gravity through canals and ditches, saturating the fields.

The farmland soaks up a portion of the water that’s diverted, and the remainder drains off the fields, flowing back into the Colorado River.

Along the river, the tribes maintain the Ahakhav Tribal Preserve, a wilderness area stretching across more than 1,200 acres where they’ve planted stands of native mesquite trees, which hold spiritual significance for tribal members. At a nursery in the preserve, workers water mesquite saplings and other native plants to use in environmental restoration projects.

Leasing a portion of the water would generate proceeds that the tribal government could use for various purposes, including supporting its coronavirus response and its efforts to improve services from education to law enforcement.

The legislation would enable CRIT to lease water in Arizona to an entity such as a city for up to 100 years, with the possibility of renewal, and would also allow the tribes to exchange and store some of their water off the reservation.

Other Native nations in Arizona with congressionally approved water settlements already have the ability to lease water, and have been making deals to send water to cities and suburbs that are searching for supplies.

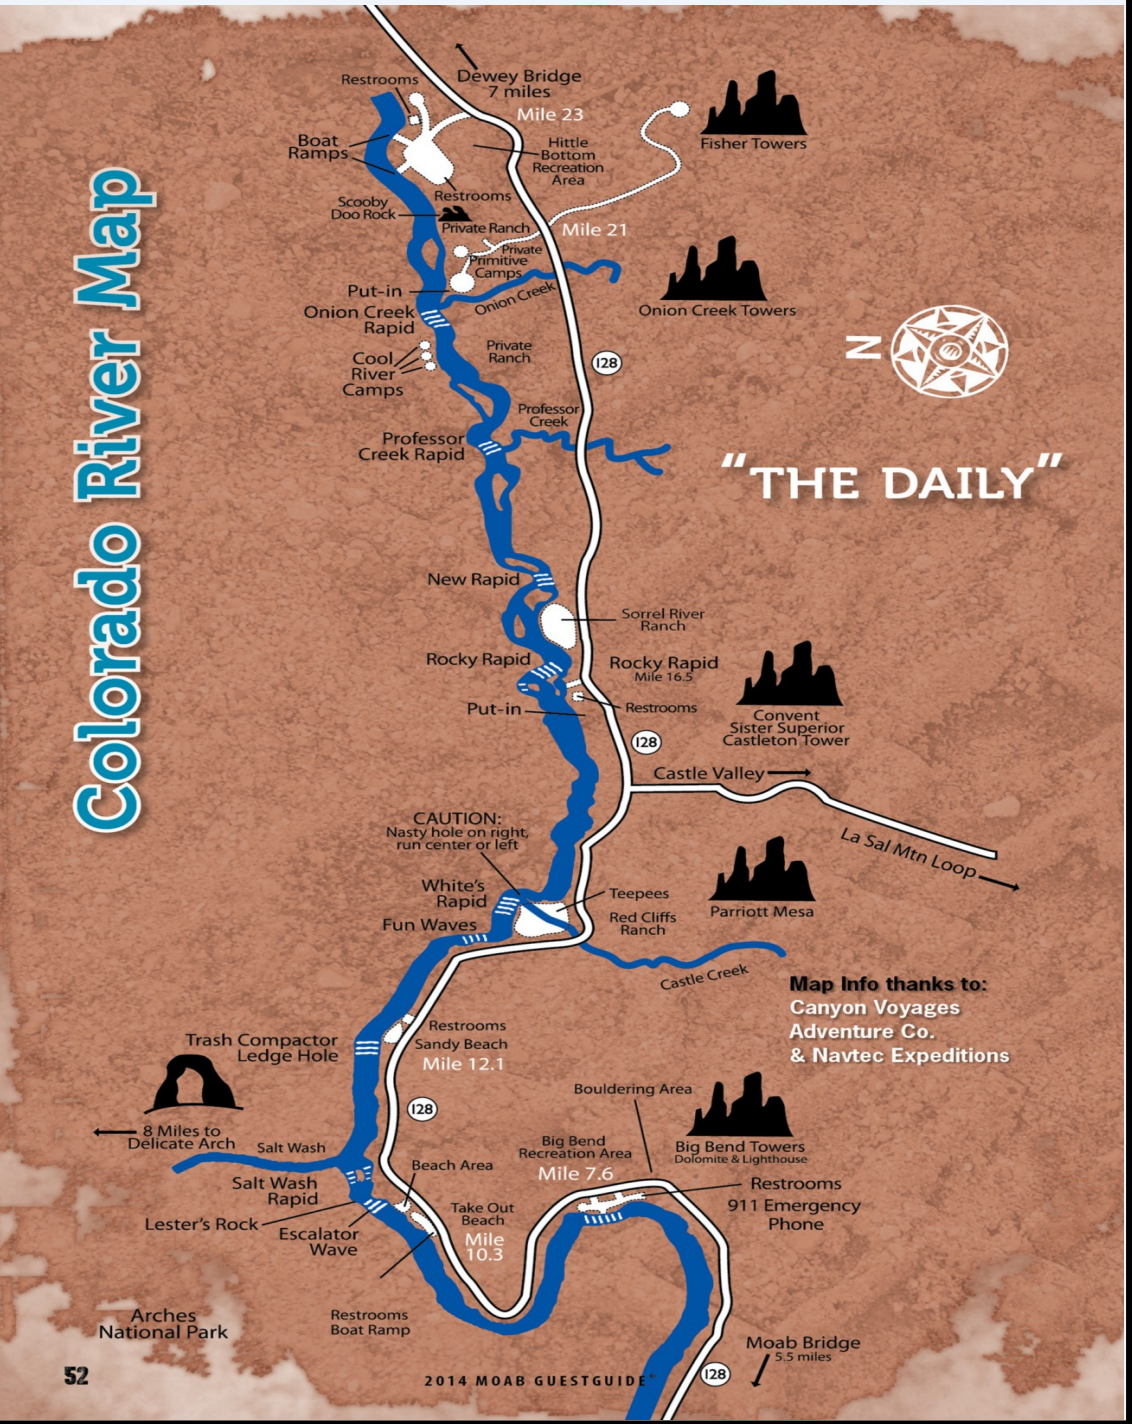

These tribes, which receive Colorado River water through the Central Arizona Project Canal, include the Gila River Indian Community, Ak-Chin Indian Community, Salt River Pima Maricopa Indian Community and Fort McDowell Yavapai Nation, among others.

In contrast, CRIT has no congressionally approved water settlement. It’s one of five tribes whose water rights were decreed by the Supreme Court in 1964 after justices ruled in the landmark case Arizona v. California, settling a dispute over claims to water from the river.

“This legislation is about our self-determination,” said Tommy Drennan, a member of the Tribal Council. Drennan pointed out that CRIT didn’t participate in the litigation that led to the Supreme Court decision.

“It was the United States that asserted our water rights. It was the United States that leased much of our reservation for the development of non-Indians for a dollar an acre for 50 years or more,” Drennan said.

It’s only been during the past two years, he said, that the last of those long-term farm leases have expired and the tribe has been able to lease the lands on more favorable terms.

Checkmate: President Trump Signing the COVID-19 Relief Bill Invoked the ‘Impoundment Control Act of 1974’

By Leisa Audette at 100 Percent FED Up * December 28, 2020

A shocking move by President Trump has turned out to be checkmate for the president. He signed the $2.3 trillion COVID-19 relief and government funding bill that includes $600 stimulus checks for most Americans.

The interesting thing is he has invoked the ‘Impoundment Control Act of 1974’ that allows changes to the bill, including increasing payments from $600 to $2,000.

The nearly 5,600-page bill passed the House and Senate a few hours after its text was released. You can bet not one person in Congress even read the bill.

The bill authorizes direct checks of $600 for people earning up to $75,000 per year, and people who make over $95,000 get nothing.

President Trump said via a statement released tonight that Congress would vote tomorrow on a separate bill to “increase payments to individuals from $600 to $2,000.”

The bill creates a new $300 weekly unemployment supplement and replenishes a forgivable loan program for small businesses. It also creates

Statement from the President

As President of the United States it is my responsibility to protect the people of our country from the economic devastation and hardship that was caused by the China Virus.

I understand that many small businesses have been forced to close as a result of harsh actions by Democrat-run states. Many people are back to work, but my job is not done until everyone is back to work.

Fortunately, as a result of my work with Congress in passing the CARES Act earlier this year, we avoided another Great Depression. Under my leadership, Project Warp Speed has been a tremendous success, my Administration and I developed a vaccine many years ahead of wildest expectations, and we are distributing these vaccines, and others soon coming, to millions of people.

As President, I have told Congress that I want far less wasteful spending and more money going to the American people in the form of $2,000 checks per adult and $600 per child.

new criminal penalties, including prison time for violating copyright laws with online streaming.

The bill is still disappointing because of the billions in pork, including foreign aid. President Trump is sending a stern recommendation that Congress must omit the foreign giveaways:

Trump says he’s signing the stimulus bill “with a strong message that makes clear to Congress that wasteful items need to be removed.” “I will send back to Congress a redlined version, item by item... insisting that those funds be removed from the bill.”

This leaves a lot of questions with regards to the Relief Bill:

- 1) If congress refuses to comply with his recommendation will the funding still be distributed?
- 2) Is their a timeline for congress to comply?
- 3) What happen if congress doesn't comply?
- 4) Can the House and Senate override the president?

Tucker goes after race-based life saving rollout: ‘If you want the vaccine you better not be white’

Fox News host Tucker Carlson ripped a decision by “ideologues” on government health panel for not prioritizing the vaccination of older Americans against COVID-19 because they “are too white to save.”

In his opening monologue Monday, December 14, 2020 Carlson led off by noting that his program was among the first to report on a “mysterious new virus” emanating from China, which was soon identified as COVID-19.

Since then, he said, most people around the world have been waiting for a vaccine, adding that two have been approved this month — one from Pfizer and another from Moderna.

He went on to say that the rapid development of the two vaccines has left many Americans skeptical about their safety, but also noted that “the worry goes deeper than that.”

“The concern isn’t simply the vaccine, it’s the people in charge of the vaccine and their basic moral rottenness,” he said.

Carlson said that “ideologues” are going to be in charge of rolling out the vaccine, which ought to “make you nervous.”

Noting that at present, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is debating how best to begin distributing the vaccines which will “determine who lives and who dies.”

That’s “a big decision” that “shouldn’t be complicated.”

The host explained that based on the health agency’s models, “the way to save the most Americans” is to ensure front-line health workers and people over the age of 65 are given first dibs, adding that British government officials are “getting the vaccine to the elderly as quickly as they can.”

“But in this country, a panel of ideologues at the CDC has decided that the elderly should not be at the front of the line. The CDC’s Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) has made a different determination, and the reasoning is simple: Old people in this country are too White to save. They even put it in writing,” he said.

Carlson went on to say that the CDC’s Vaccine Advisory Committee “unanimously approved recommendations” from Dr. Kathleen Dooling, who said in a presentation that “racial and ethnic minority groups [are] under-represented [sic] among adults” who are 65 and over.

As such, the host said, “the elderly should not be a top priority.”

The panel also agreed that others officially classified as “non-healthcare essential workers” who should also be vaccinated first consist of “racial and ethnic minority groups” which are “disproportionately represented in many essential industries.”

“In other words, it’s entirely racial. They’re making the decision based on race. Kathleen Dooling’s presentation concluded that doling out life-saving medicine on the basis of skin color would ‘mitigate health inequities,’” Carlson said.

“Of course it would kill people, and she effectively concedes that. But the people it would kill come from a disfavored race, so it’s not a big deal,” he added.

Carlson went on to cite additional, similar recommendations including one from Harald Schmidt, a leading expert on medical ethics and vaccination at the University of Pennsylvania.

Schmidt told the CDC: “Older populations are whiter. [sic] Society is structured in a way that enables them to live longer. Instead of giving additional health benefits to those who already have more of them, we can start to level the playing field a bit.”

“In this case,” Carlson continued, “level the playing field” means intentionally cause people’s deaths because they’re the wrong color.”

He then quoted Marc Lipsitch, a Harvard epidemiologist, who said he doesn’t think teachers should be included in the non-healthcare essential workers.

“Teachers have middle-class salaries, are very often white, and they have college degrees,” he told The New York Times, Carlson noted.

“What the hell is going on? Talk like that from the people in charge makes the population highly paranoid and fearful about the future, and it should. In California, the governor has already announced the state will distribute medicine based on how people look,” said the host.

He played a clip of Gov. Gavin Newsom saying the state would ensure “black and brown communities disproportionately are benefited” with vaccines “because of the impact they have felt disproportionately because of COVID-19.”

“So certain ethnicities will get the vaccine first because of their ethnicity, says the governor of California, and it doesn’t matter if that policy winds up killing more people or is not based in science,” said Carlson. “Because it’s not based in science. In fact, maybe that’s the point. It’ll level the playing field.”

“The case they’re making is when you’re the right color, you’re essential, and that makes sense, considering that increasingly your color is your essence. It’s the most important thing about you. In this case, it can determine whether you live or die. That’s the country they are creating,” he said, adding: “So, is it any wonder that this vaccine rollout makes people nervous?”

Dheeraj P.C. of fairobserver.com wrote in October “Chinese espionage cases in the US have assumed alarming proportions. On July 7, Christopher Wray, the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, declared: “We’ve now reached the point where the FBI is opening a new China-related counterintelligence case about every 10 hours. Of the nearly 5,000 active FBI counter-intelligence cases currently underway across the country, almost half are all related to China.”

The question is: has Chinese Intel become the single largest threat to the United States practically overnight? Or is the Trump Administration the first to actually express an interest in repelling them in over twenty years?

A threat which the media and the Obama administration willfully chose to ignore.

Sharing is caring!

If the headlines are any indication: then the massive compromise of our government by China has been ongoing for a very long time, but the mainstream media is trying their best to ignore it still.

Even when Georgia’s Democratic US Senate Candidate Jon Ossoff discloses financial ties to Beijing, and when Rep. Eric Swalwell falls victim to a more indiscrete link it’s obvious to American’s of every persuasion: Our Government, our elections, our businesses have all become fatally compromised. With so little trust left to go around, we can only trust each other, and watch each other’s backs.

Communist party branches have been set up inside western companies, allowing the infiltration of those companies by CCP members — who, if called on, are answerable directly to the communist party, to the Chairman, the president himself,” Sharri Markson wrote.

Not to mention Hunter Biden’s close ties to China that his father knows nothing about but is alleged to have received 10% of the money paid to Hunter!

Georgia: When is it a Conflict of Intertest? Federal Judge Leslie Gardner blocks voter purge in 2 Georgia counties ahead of Senate run-off, She is Stacey Abrams' Sister.

Cleaning up voter rolls in America continues to be a difficult as trying to pull a tooth with a string, and almost as painful, thanks in large part to the Democratic Party and a few liberal judges — all of which may explain the party's affinity for unsolicited mail-in ballots.

In Georgia, where a pair of run-off elections taking place in January carry with them the critical balance of the U.S. Senate, a federal judge ordered two counties to reverse a decision removing more than 4,000 voters from the rolls, according to Politico.

But we're not talking just any judge. U.S. District Judge Leslie Gardner, an Obama appointee, is the sister of the Georgia Socialist Democratic voter registration activist Stacey Abrams.

Sister, Judge Leslie issued the ruling Monday, December 28, 2020 after rejecting a request to remove herself from the case due to her relationship with her sister: "The Court has reviewed the motion and finds no basis for recusal."

Georgia is one of a handful of swing states that Trump led on Election Night, only to see his lead evaporate into thin air as the counting went on and on. And on.

Her grassroots organizing and voter registration efforts were cited as deciding factors in the outcome of the presidential election — following a now familiar script, Abrams denounced past efforts to maintain clean voters rolls as disenfranchisement.

The distinguished New York Times ballyhooed about Abrams "building a well-funded network of organizations that highlighted voter suppression in the state and inspired an estimated 800,000 residents to register to vote." And celebrated by the BBC as the "woman behind Biden's biggest surprise."

Muscogee County is one of the counties affected by Monday's ruling, and Politico reported the county board said in its recusal request Abrams is "a Georgia politician and voting rights activist ... engaged in various highly publicized efforts to increase voter registration and turnout for the 2020 general election in Georgia."

After Biden pulled ahead in Georgia, Abrams took to Twitter to crow, citing a number of left-wing voting rights advocacy group.

Despite her sister, Stacey Abrams' deep involvement in the voter registration efforts in Georgia, judge Leslie Gardner saw no reason to recuse herself from a case involving her sister and voter registration.

Last year Chief Justice Roberts chided President Trump for his tweet regarding federal appointed judges as "Obama or Clinton Judges," saying there are no Obama or Clinton judges, only federal judges. Yea right, never mind the presiding federal judges sister is up to her fat ass in the voter fraud she went ahead and used her, if not illegal at the least unethical authority as a federal judge to help her sister and co-conspirators.

They're not ever trying to hide their ballot stuffing, harvesting or insuring that the dead have the opportunity to vote. Even the Supreme Court has turned a blind eye to this massive perversion of our election system, accountability and the rule of law.

And in Georgia with the pending two senate seats run-off election nothing has changed, the mass mail-in-ballots, corrupt dominion voting machines and voting system are still in place.

Will congress have the courage to overturn the massive voter fraud? In my opinion no! Most are Like Creepy Joe, as lone as they are getting their cut nothing else matters.

All this while the mass media bombards the airway with the message; "Sit down, shut up, follow orders and move on." We have had nine months training after all, right!

In keeping with the Thanksgiving and Christmas spirit of sharing and giving the Southern California American Indian Resource Center, Inc., (SCAIR) distributed almost 700 fifty-dollars food vouchers to needy American Indian families living within the urban areas of east San Diego, Imperial and Ventura Counties.

Over the past several year, during the Thanksgivings and Christmas' season, SCAIR has distributed "Food Boxes" to American Indian families in need. However, this year due to the COVID-19 fifty-dollar food vouchers were given out.

The distribution effort is made possible in part from funded provided by the Northern California Indian Development Council (NCIDC) located in Eureka, California and several local Tribal Governments have also contributed to this worthy effort. The Tribal ask that SCAIR not mention them by name as the giving is a Tribal traditional and not for recognition.

SCAIR has expanded its geographical service area from San Diego and Imperial Counties to include the coastal Counties of San Benito, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Sonoma, Monterey and San Luis Obispo.

For the past 24-years SCAIR has provided a wide range of educational and cultural services for the American Indian and Alaskan Native urban Tribal Communities and Hawaiian Native in San Diego County. The goal to continue to provide the same quality of services for the coastal communities.

SCAIR is a California American Indian Education Center authorized by the California Department of Education. The CDE funding allow SCSIR to provide tutorial services for American Indian students in grades K-12 attending schools within the San Diego Unified School District.

The San Diego Unified School Districts is one of largest school districts in the state with over 37,000 students that includes approximately 750 self identified American Indian and Alaskan Natives.

The majority of the services provided by SCAIR was in east San Diego County which, include the City of San Diego and the tribal members from the Barona, Sycuan, Campo, Viejas, Manzanita, La Posta and Jamul Village Indian Reservations.

Wanda Michaels, SCAIR Executive Director in a resent interview with the American Indian Reporter said. "It seems like it was only yesterday that we started, but it's been 24-years."

"The east Diego County tribes have been very supportive of SCAIR from the beginning we are thankful for their continued support."

"The Southern California Tribal Chairmen's Association, Inc., (SCTCA) has also been very supportive over the years with technical assistance and training" she added.

BLM Release List of Demands for ‘White People’

Source:

This didn’t start with George Floyd, Chanelle Helm insists. Black Lives Matter just updated their list of demands for “white people” to comply with that Helm produced a couple years ago. To make the connection to George Soros a little less conspicuous, they used an independent group as a front. Concerned Citizens DC issued a list.

George Soros is a little upset with the bad publicity he’s been getting lately. His name keeps coming up every time someone wonders who’s paying for the signs, the gasoline, and the media hype.

When BLM put out a list of demands a couple years ago, the whole idea went down in flames so this time, they got a front group to release a polished press release with their real intentions glossed away. We know how they really feel from what Helm put out the last time.

“It started 600 years ago when white supremacy was a tool for destruction,” the leader of Louisville, Kentucky’s branch of Black Lives Matter said recently. People of color are simply at “the boiling point of that outrage and frustration.” Chanelle Helm is demanding an end to the “broken system of policing that disproportionately hurts people of color.”

If white people haven’t changed their minds in 600 years then its safe to assume that Black Lives Matter hasn’t changed theirs in the past two years. They still want the same things. In 2017 Helm wrote, “Commit to two things: Fighting white supremacy where and how you can (this doesn’t mean taking up knitting, unless you’re making scarves for black and brown kids in need), and funding black and brown people and their work.” White people, she insists should “give up the home you own to a black or brown family.”

With better legal advice than what Ms. Helm had in 2017 and more funding to hire writers who can work without curse words, the updated list of demands was released Wednesday. Along with charges against all four officers in the George Floyd case and “justice for Breonna Taylor” they demand that marijuana be instantly decriminalized.

Ideas like civilian review boards and “nationwide commitment by police forces to end brutal practices” like choke holds, have been on the table for a long time. Minority protesters are now demanding that DC be declared a state.

They also want things to be nicer in prison and a private police force. One of their more interesting ones is they demand people get out and vote and fill out the census forms. Even they realize they don’t have much leverage.

They start out “we demand that concerned citizens across this nation reflect that concern in spaces that will affect decision making.” Then they admit they don’t have a leg to stand on. “We encourage everybody to participate in the U.S. Census and to vote.”

They admit they have declared war. The ground had been stained with innocent black blood for centuries.

“We are fighting now for what America will be.” Even liberal leaning CBS got caught up in the frenzy when Friday’s version of CBS This Morning erupted into racially charged chaos. “Both the hosts and their left-wing guests repeatedly accused all white people of being born with racial ‘privilege’ and taught to be racist as children.”

They demand we level the playing field.

‘This is the new Socialist America’: Soros-backed Los Angeles DA under fire for publicly insulting murder victim’s mother

BPR Business & Politics * By Tom Tillison, December 20, 2020 - Contributed by Franklin Motte, Moreno Valley CA

Newly elected Los Angeles District Attorney George Gascon is under fire for a dismissive demeanor toward the mother of a 2015 murder victim who was kidnapped and tortured.

Gascon was speaking outside the Pomona courthouse when Desiree Andrade called out, “My son can never speak again because he was murdered. He was kidnapped, tortured and murdered. My son matters.”

On Friday, Gascon dropped special circumstances filed for Julian Andrade’s accused killers, removing the possibility of life without parole, Fox 11 Los Angeles reported.

“It’s unfortunate that some people do not have enough education to keep their mouth shut so we can talk,” Gascon is heard saying, just before Andrade’s comments.

Gascon, who supports sentencing reforms and reduced jail populations, was elected to office with the assistance of billionaire George Soros, the Democratic mega-donor and founder of Open Society Foundations, who contributed $2.25 million to his campaign, according to the LA Times.

Yes, this is the same George Soros, a Jew that turned on his own people and served in Hitler’s Nazi Army. The same multi-billionaire that supported Obama, Hilary and most recently Joe Biden. The same George Soros that wants to king of the world under the cover of the “One World Order.” But, hey pay attention, Trump and his supporters are the bad guys!

Immediately upon taking office Gascon ended the use of cash bail for many crimes.

Fox LA reporter Bill Melugin said in a tweet that he reached out to Gascon’s team for a comment on the video.

“I’ve initially been told he wasn’t aware they were family members of victims yelling at him when he made this comment, and thought they were just hecklers,” he said.

As for the formal statement, it wasn’t long in coming.

“While speaking to colleagues outside of the office, there were individuals yelling on opposite sides of the crowd,” Gascon said in the release. “I did not understand what they were yelling about until later, let alone that they were victims.”

“Regardless, it’s not how I should have reacted,” the prosecutor continued. “Clearly, this family is in pain, and I will be contacting them to speak directly and hear them out. The defendants in this case are all facing life in prison.”

Andrade told FOX 11 she saw her son’s alleged killers smirk in court earlier Friday as their special circumstance charges were dismissed.

“Smirking from ear to ear. One of the lawyers giving one of them a fist bump on his shoulder, like ‘Good job, way to go.’ Really?” she said. “They thought my son was dead three different times, and yet, they continued to beat my son to death. You’re going to tell me those aren’t murderers?”

Adolph Hitler once said. “An uninformed population is a politician’s dream.” And it appears to be proven true or maybe his other strategy of controlling the message supplied by the media better known as “Propaganda.”

“We the People” have just been defrauded by a well financed group of highly skilled political operative using the mainstream media, highly sophisticated technology software that 99.99 percent of the general public have never heard of no less is able to understand.

And the very people in the U.S. Congress that are suppose to protect our Constitutional Rights seem to be more interested in protecting their own personal income sources.

Washington D.C. Swamp Rat, RINO Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell’s Dominion Voter Machine $$$ Donations

RINO, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell shows his true alliance as America fights for it’s freedom from becoming a Marxist Country.

75 to 90 million Americans are estimated to have voted for President Trump’s in November 3, 2020 only to be robbed by the Socialist.

And as the main stream media, Facebook, Twitter, You Tube and other big tech companies censor any and all information that don’t fit their propaganda narrative while bombard the general public.

We are not only expected to obediently accept, but to believe that 80-million Americans voted for a “Corrupt Buffoon” that isn’t even able to remember where he is most of the tome and a “Marxist’ whose only qualification was the pigmentation of her skin and gender. And neither one was able to draw more than 200 voters to attend any of their campaign rallies. Yea, right!

While President Trump had a exercised his legal Constitutional rights to challenge the massive voter fraud he has been demonized and politically denied any relief by the courts.

Yet, not one court has ruled on the merits of the evidence of voter fraud, they have denied his request on “procedural ground.”

The U.S. Senate is currently holding hearing into the voter fraud allegations with overwhelming evidence being presented.

The Constitution also provides for the congress to ratify the electoral college vote. It also allows for members of the House and Senate to challenge to election which would force the Senate and House to meet and determine whether to hold an Congressional vote that could possibly over turn the General Election.

Again, 75-90 million American Patriots don’t support McConnell because they know in their hearts that the Presidency was stolen from President Trump and the American people.

That’s the lesson these swamp rats in the establishment never learn.

The American people are tired of the political elites sticking up their noses and ignoring the will of the citizens they are supposed to represent. That’s why they elect Trump in the first place.

And now, they want their GOP elected officials to fight this fraudulent election until the very end.

For those millions of Patriots who want to keep America a free Country and not a “Marxist” Government, te fight is not over.

After looking into McConnell’s political and business ties, then it becomes clear who has his loyalty.

Does this show that the 2020 election was a two-party operative rigging against President Trump?

You have to wonder how many other GOP Congress members took donations from Dominion and other voting machine lobbyists. And let’s not forget George Soros as it has been proven that Mitch Romney is one of his puppets.

The Political Insider Reported:

A report from July of 2019 indicates Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell received thousands of dollars in donations from lobbyists for two of the largest electronic voting machine vendors in the United States - Election Systems & Software and Dominion Voting Systems. Wow, kinda make you wonder who else has given him dollars.

Newsweek reported on the donations in noting that McConnell (R-KY) had squashed two separate bills in the Senate addressing election security.

The reports were based on an investigation by an outlet called ‘Sludge.’

“Several of the lobbyists working for ES&S and Dominion Voting Systems have recently made contributions to McConnell’s campaign and joint fundraising committee,” Sludge wrote.

The outlet also found other funds:

Brownstein Hyatt Farber and Schreck lobbyist David Cohen, who lobbies for Dominion Voting Systems on issues related to election security and monitors federal legislation for the company, gave McConnell $2,000 on March 31: $1,000 to his campaign committee and $1,000 to his joint fundraising committee.

Lobbyist Brain Wild, who works alongside Cohen on the Dominion contract, gave McConnell $1,000 on the same day.

The BBC also notes McConnell’s entanglement with Dominion saying the “company has also donated” to his committee.

Particularly interesting from the Newsweek article is that they describe McConnell’s opposition to the election security bills as “out of balance with his party.”

The Senate Intelligence Committee, which is led by Republicans, had released a report with concerns about Russians targeting voting systems, including an instance in Illinois where “Russian cyber-actors were in a position to delete or change voter data.”

In December of that same year, four congressional Democrats including Senator Elizabeth Warren (D-MA) sent a letter to the owners of Dominion Voting Systems claiming several problems that “threaten the integrity of our elections,” including “vote switching.”

McConnell did agree to add $250 million for election security after having held up the earlier legislation.

“Now it is learned that the horrendous Dominion Voting System was used in Arizona (and big in Nevada),” Trump tweeted. “No wonder the result was a very close loss!”

Texas rejected Dominion voting machines due to safety concerns

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell warned Republican senators Tuesday during a private caucus call not to object to the election results on Jan. 6, according to two sources familiar with the matter.

McConnell told his caucus that challenging the results would force Republicans to take a “terrible vote” because they would need to vote it down and appear against President Donald Trump. Senate Majority Whip John Thune (R-S.D.) and Sen. Roy Blunt (R-Mo.) also echoed McConnell’s remarks.

Sen. Shelley Moore Capito (R-W.Va.) said that no one objected on the call to McConnell encouraging members to accept the election results.

“There wasn’t any pushback to it,” she said. “There’s wasn’t anyone saying: oh wait a minute.”

McConnell’s advice comes one day after the Electoral College officially voted for Joe Biden as the president -elect. The Kentucky Republican acknowledged for the first time that Biden will be the next president in his floor remarks Tuesday.

Several House hardline Republicans led by conservative Rep. Mo Brooks (R-Ala.), are still planning to challenge the election results on Jan. 6, the date Congress will officially certify them.

If a Republican senator joins the long-shot effort, however, it will force both chambers to take a vote on the election. But they have yet to get official buy-in from any GOP senators, though Sen. Rand Paul (R-Ky.) hasn’t ruled it out.

Brooks, in response to McConnell cautioning the GOP against objecting to the election results, tweeted that he hopes it’s “fake news.”

“I find it unfathomable that anyone would acquiesce to election theft and voter fraud because they lack the courage to take a difficult vote on the House or Senate floor,” Brooks said in a phone interview. “Last time I checked, that’s why we were elected to Congress.”

Brooks met briefly last week with several GOP senators to discuss his effort, but declined to say whether anyone is seriously considering the idea. Conservatives, however, have been eyeing Sen.-elect Tommy Tuberville — another Alabama Republican and Trump supporter — as someone who may get on board.

And Senate Republicans are unsure where he stands; Tuberville was not a part of Tuesday’s conference call.

McConnell’s warning underscores how the last-ditch bid to overturn the election is putting the GOP in a bind. On the one hand, Republicans are facing pressure from Trump and his allies to support his attempt to remain in power. And party leaders want to keep the base energized ahead of a pair of critical Georgia runoff races on Jan. 5. that will determine control of the Senate.

Not a good thing for the American people that want to keep a free Country.

But, what else would you expect from a corrupt D.C. swamp rat?

Senator Hawley & Sen.-elect Tommy Tuberville vow to challenge Biden electors, forcing vote McConnell hoped to avoid

POLITICO December 20, 2020 * Contributed Andrea Marquez, Soboba Indian Reservation, So. CA

Sen. Josh Hawley (R-Mo.) on Wednesday December 20, 2020 pledged to challenge President-elect Joe Biden's votes in Pennsylvania and possibly other states when Congress is set to certify the results of the 2020 election. on Jan. 6, 2021

Hawley’s announcement guarantees that both chambers will be forced to debate the voter fraud as evidence continues to grow. The vote audit results in Pennsylvania in December indicated that their were 205,000 more ballots cast than registered voter. And other states have also been shown the same results.

Sen.-elect Tommy Tuberville (R-Ala.), had signaled his willingness to support a challenge to Biden's voter results.

Trump had praised Tuberville and blasted other Republicans as "weak," threatening to end the political career of Sen. John Thune (R-S.D.), who told reporters that any challenges were doomed to defeat.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell had urged Republicans to avoid, despite pressure from President Donald Trump, who is urging Republicans to overturn the democratic results.

The traditional rules of the Jan. 6, 2021 session — a joint meeting of the House and Senate — require a single House member and senator to join together to lodge a challenge. If they do, the branches are required to separate and debate the challenge before resuming the joint session.

Dozens of House Republicans have already pledged to challenge the results but had yet to secure unequivocal support from a senator.

The rules that govern those challenges are due to be adopted on Jan. 3. But at least some Republicans have endorsed a legal effort to scrap the rules altogether and empower Vice President Mike Pence, who will preside over the session, to unilaterally introduce electors backing Trump.
